

Agreement Practice

Rewrite each sentence to correct the subject-verb or pronoun agreement error.

1. I like to read the newspaper, which is where you learn what is happening around you in our daily lives.
2. At the end of one room is the desk, a chair, and a computer.
3. If you are neat, then it is hard for you to get along with a person who throws their clothes around or leaves their dirty dishes in the sink.
4. Why should one risk going into business for oneself, if not to manage your own business the way you wish to, without interference from others?
5. Either slavery or rebellion are the reaction of a child raised by authoritarian parents.
6. Everyone knows that eating fatty foods likes French fries, hot dogs and bacon make people overweight.
7. The feelings that flow through your body as you soar down the hill is indescribable.
8. As I grew older and very attracted to women, the idea of committing yourself to one person for the rest of your life still didn't interest me.
9. Decorating your room on a low budget can bring headaches and certainly takes patience, but the compliments you'll get and the sense of pride you'll feel every time you looks around your room is worth the effort.

10. My friend told me that her parents' divorce has affected her in these ways: You learn how to take care of yourself. You're more mature than other people. You don't need anyone to tell me what to do. You learn how to be more disciplined. I can stay out to any time but I try to limit myself. I just don't feel good staying out all night. She also mentioned that the most frightening feeling of all was knowing that she misses having her parents asking her what time she will be home or how school was today.